A Message From Rabbi Kane

Now the hard part.

We thought fasting was the hard part? Having realistic conversations with ourselves? Juggling our schedules to make room for holiday services?

Not the hard part.

So what is truly challenging and difficult?

Keeping the promises we made to others and to ourselves.

There is a lyric from a Disney movie, "You do what you gotta do."

But how do we make the adjustments we need to make to find time for our promises?

I am reminded of the Rabbi who told another Rabbi, "We ought to thank God every minute of every day for his blessings." Conservatively thinking, we would wind up reciting a Bracha 600 times a day.

The other Rabbi responded,

"We would never get anything done."

It is a fabulous idea to live a life of appreciation, but most of us have not occupied every minute of our time with thanks.

We have filled up our time with busy.

Often, busy is another word for phones.

I asked Dr Google what he thought. Here is his response:

Practical Steps to Break the Habit

Turn off notifications: Disable non-essential push notifications so your phone stops demanding your attention.

Switch to grayscale: Change your phone's display to black-and-white to make the screen much less visually rewarding.

Increase physical distance: Leave your phone in another room during meals or when you go to bed.

Set strict app limits: Use built-in screen time tools, and consider having a trusted friend set a password you do not know so you cannot easily override the limits.

Establish a bedtime routine: Pick a specific time in the evening to put the device away and use a traditional alarm clock instead.

Most users on Reddit agree that associating your bed primarily with sleep rather than scrolling helps build lasting boundaries.

So let's make room for our promises.

Wishing you a year of health, happiness and success.

The Presidents' Message

This time of year is not only for introspection but also for expressing gratitude for the generosity of others.

First and foremost, we must thank Rabbi Kane and Rabbi Weilheimer for leading our high holiday services and providing such a moving and meaningful experience this year.

Our gratitude to Deb Rodensky and Larry Cooperman for their help organizing the Aliyahs and readings while also ensuring that the services ran smoothly. Thank you to the Shofar blowers and all of the adults who participated in the services making them so special. We want to recognize and thank the members of the “younger generation” who added so much to the services with special recognition to Sam Kisseloff who chanted the Yom Kippur Maftir on very short notice. Many thanks to Harriet Fritts and the choir for their beautiful renditions of some of our traditional holiday prayers.

Thank you to Lea and the kitchen angels for preparing the delicious Break the Fast that was enjoyed by everyone at the conclusion of services.

We hope you are enjoying the new yearbook that was lovingly published by Lea and Sherry Armstrong, with the assistance of Netta Weiner and Roberta Feldman. Our compliments to Semareva Friedman, for creating another beautiful cover for the yearbook.

To the construction crew of Jared Kisseloff, Joe Zimmerman and Ira Freedman who assembled the Sukkah, thank you gentlemen.

Last, thank you to everyone who made, and will make pledges to the Yom Kippur Appeal; our synagogue will not survive without your largesse. We respectfully ask that you please fulfill your pledges and pay your outstanding dues as soon as possible.

L'Shana Tova!!

Your Co-Presidents

October Torah Times - Religious School Updates

September was a busy month for our CBT community. While Shalom School took a brief pause from regular Sunday School classes as we celebrated the High Holidays, there was certainly no shortage of activity happening throughout the month.

We wrapped up our Apples & Honey fundraiser, and I want to thank everyone who participated and helped make it a success. These fundraisers are an important part of supporting our Shalom School programs, and we are grateful for the continued generosity and support of our CBT families. We hosted our monthly

Kid & Tot Shabbat and families were encouraged to participate in Reverse Tashlich, a joint effort between CBT and Temple Beth El that gave our community an opportunity to put the values of tikkun olam into action.

One of the highlights of September was seeing many of our students participate in our High Holiday services. It is always special to watch them become more confident in their Jewish traditions and see their learning come to life. Our students participated in English readings, led prayers in Hebrew, chanted Haftarah, and even read from the Torah. We are proud of each of them and grateful to the families who encourage and support their participation.

As we prepared to celebrate Sukkot, our students also gathered to decorate the CBT sukkah and fill it with color. A special thank you to Alan and Jared Kisseloff, Ira Freedman, and Joe Zimmerman for putting up the sukkah. Afterward, we enjoyed pizza and music with Rabbi Kane as part of Kid & Tot Shabbat.

Looking ahead, October and November are filled with activities. Shalom School will return with two sessions in October and two more in November. We also hope our CBT families will join us the evening of Saturday October 3, for our special Simchat Torah celebration and party as we come together to celebrate the Torah – and don't forget the ice cream!

I am especially excited to share a new opportunity for our Shalom School teens. Thanks to the generous support of the Jewish Federation Endowment, we are expanding Shalom School to include a new High School component. We want to create a meaningful way for them to continue their Jewish education while also strengthening their connection to one another and to our Jewish community. The new High School program will meet one evening each month. Each gathering will begin with dinner and time to connect, followed by two classes designed specifically for our high school students. We are excited about this new chapter for Shalom School and the opportunities it will provide for our teens. A special thank you to Les Grussgott, as he will be teaching a class on the Holocaust.

As I reflect on our High Holiday services this month, I am reminded once again how fortunate we are to have such a wonderful community supporting the next generation. Wishing all of our CBT families a sweet New Year!

-Val Kisseloff

MEN'S CLUB®

By Ken Haberman, President

Hello everyone. Fall is finally here, so happy about that!

We had a very enjoyable Schnapps in the Sukkah on Sunday, September 27th. The 20 guests schmoozed at the Lulav Lounge, and partook of unique and tasty liqueurs. Trivia winners were Larry Cooperman (Mr. Jeopardy), Debra Rodensky, and Hannah Zimmerman, with lovely prizes from the Sisterhood cabinet. Congratulations for your knowledge on Jewish trivia! It was a beautiful evening under the moon and stars, and we had a lot of fun!

There will be a free Men's Club Breakfast Social, on Sunday, October 25 at 9:30 am at CBT. This is for our men only this time, and there will be no meeting agenda. Just good food and good conversation!

You are always welcome to check out our Men's Club events even if you are not a member. For more information, please visit our Men's Club page on the CBT website: <https://mybnaitorah.org/mens-club/>. Annual dues are only $36.

MENSCH OF THE MONTH

By our Congregant Ray Leonard

October “Mensch of the Month” Harriet Fritts

Harriet Fritts, our October Mensch of the Month, is best known to our congregation for her direction of our choir which provides Congregation B’nai Torah with enjoyment and spiritual enlightenment at holidays and many other special events. She is also on the Boards of Congregation B’nai Torah and the Jewish Federation and has supported the congregation in many other ways. Her life is a rich tapestry of fulfilling her earliest ambition of teaching and helping those less fortunate. Through her commitment to our faith, she has also provided a special link from her ancestors to her children in the continuation of Jewish tradition and observance.

Harriet’s father, William (Willy) Ferrer, grew up as one of ten children in Siemiatycze, a center of Jewish learning and culture since the Middle Ages, through ruling by Lithuania, Czarist Russia and finally Poland. In the interwar years (1919-39), the population was about two-thirds Jewish. Zionism and religious study were central to the town’s fame. The famous academy, Kadima, produced both rabbi’s and emigrants to Palestine. Willy’s older brother, Mordechai, was one such emigrant to Palestine and Willy studied to be a rabbi. Another brother, Nathan, emigrated to the United States. One month before the Nazi invasion in September 1939, Willy at age 23 was fortunate to be able to emigrate to join his brother in the states. The rest of the surviving family to that point, including her grandparents and her father’s remaining brothers and sisters and their families perished in the holocaust. They were deported to the Treblinka death camp, some perishing on the journey in cattle cars. One cousin survived to relate the horrific story. Harriet’s mother, Helen, was born in the USA, of immigrants from Minsk. Unlike her father’s family, who were Orthodox, they were “cultural” Jews. Both families settled in the New York area.

Upon arriving in the USA, Willy became a “shochet” or Kosher butcher. In 1942, he enlisted in the army where he was a cook performing the same function. While serving, Harriet’s future parents met and were married in 1945. After the war, Willy worked for his brother in New York, where Harriet’s older brother was born. They then moved to Albany, where Harriet, and a younger brother who was severely disabled all of his life, were born. When Harriet was six, the family moved to New Jersey, where Willy and his nephew opened a Kosher meat store and delicatessen . They eventually settled in Elizabeth, New Jersey where Harriet spent the remainder of her childhood.

It was a happy childhood in a close-knit family. Harriet loved music and remembers the family “jam sessions” with her mother on the piano, Harriet on the accordion, her uncle on the harmonica and her cousins playing the kazoo and spoons! It was a culturally observant family, and she fondly recalls the holiday dinners with up to 18 participants. Harriet always wanted to be a teacher. In first grade, she wanted to be a first-grade teacher, in second grade a second-grade teacher and so on. By fifth grade she was a teacher’s aid for kindergarten classes.

Harriet went to the State University of New York in Buffalo, with the blessing of her parents. Her mother wanted her to have a professional career, and her father wanted her to find a Jewish husband. She accomplished both as she received a teaching degree and as a senior, met and later married a student at Cornell Medical School (Jewish of course!) When she graduated, her motivation was not only to teach but to “save the world” helping the underprivileged. She took a teaching job after graduation in Englewood, New Jersey for underprivileged children as her husband completed his medical school training. His residency took them to Philadelphia, where Harriet taught 6th grade at a Hebrew Academy. When the first of two daughters were born, Harriet became a fulltime mom.

After five years in Philadelphia, in 1980, Harriet’s husband was offered a position in Lakeland, Florida. After a year, a better opening came and he established his practice in Daytona Beach. Both of their parents soon decided to retire to the area from the northeast.

Life does not always follow the smooth path that we plan and a few years later, Harriet became a single mom with her two daughters. Harriet went back to work as a third grade teacher at Bet Safer while also studying and completing a master’s degree at Stetson in Marriage and Family Therapy and Guidance Counseling. This has led to a rewarding career working as a guidance counselor and a therapist in the Jacksonville area as well as Daytona Beach. This included six years as a counselor at the Chiles Academy, a charter school for pregnant and parenting teens. Meanwhile, in 1988, she met Al Fritts and they married in 1990, beginning a 36-year love affair that continues to this day. Her family was expanded to include two stepchildren, Sarah and Andrew. Good things happen to good people.

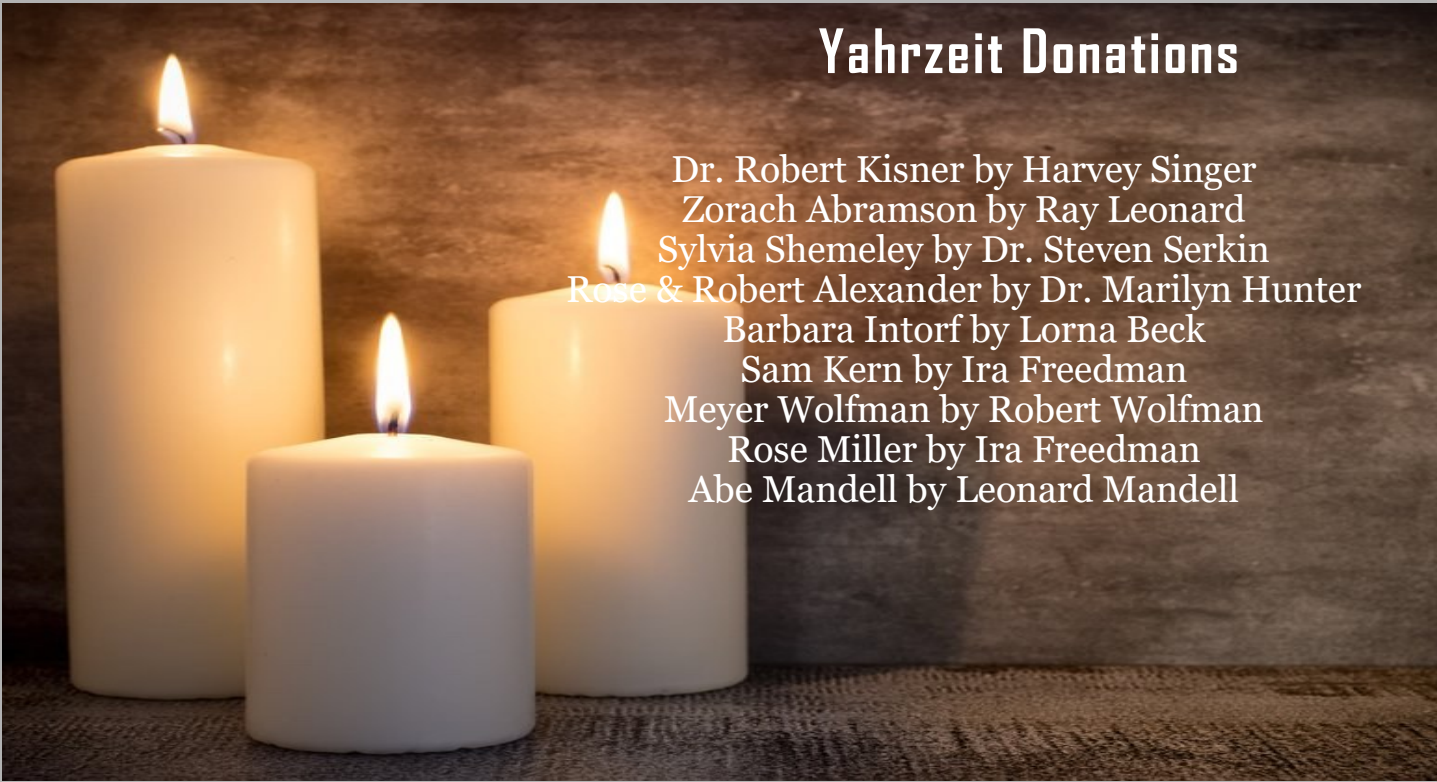

Synagogue has always been a core part of Harriet’s life. Wherever she lived, she was an active member of a congregation and usually the choir director. Her daughters, Deborah and Susan, both received their Bat Mitzvah. As her father neared the end of his life, they tried to move Deborah’s Bat Mitzvah up a year for him to experience it. Sadly, he passed away just before it took place. Both daughters follow the Orthodox tradition with their families, and one grandson serves in the IDF in Israel. There has been a reconnecting with the family of Harriet’s father’s older brother who emigrated to Palestine in the 1930’s. Harriet became a Bat Mitzvah while in Jacksonville.

Harriet was a core member of Temple Israel, directing the choir, of course. After TI became inactive, she decided that our Congregation B’nai Torah was most compatible with her religious and cultural experience and joined us, becoming a valued and beloved member. She feels that our congregation is like family.

In 2001, Harriet’s mother unfortunately had a debilitating stroke and Harriet retired to assist in her full-time care. She lived to the age of 98, passing away in 2013. However, Harriet has a full life with her continued and extensive volunteer work, including tutoring for the Volusia Literacy Council, participation in our congregation and keeping track of her 14 grandchildren!

Not surprisingly, the Jewish faith is to Harriet her identity, culture, and connection to God. Fundamental objectives in our faith include making it a better place by helping others, especially those less fortunate, and carrying on the traditions of our ancestors. Harriet’s life is a wonderful example of living up to the traditions and expectations of her ancestors and making the world a better place for every life that she has touched.
